

I was walking down the street when I heard a strange sound...

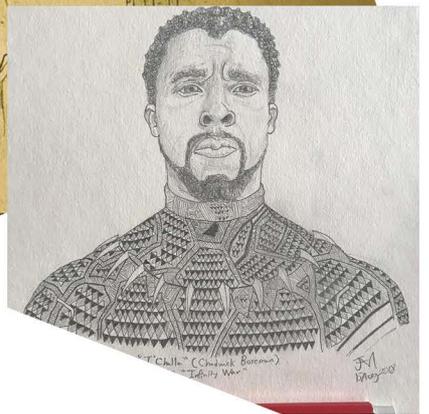

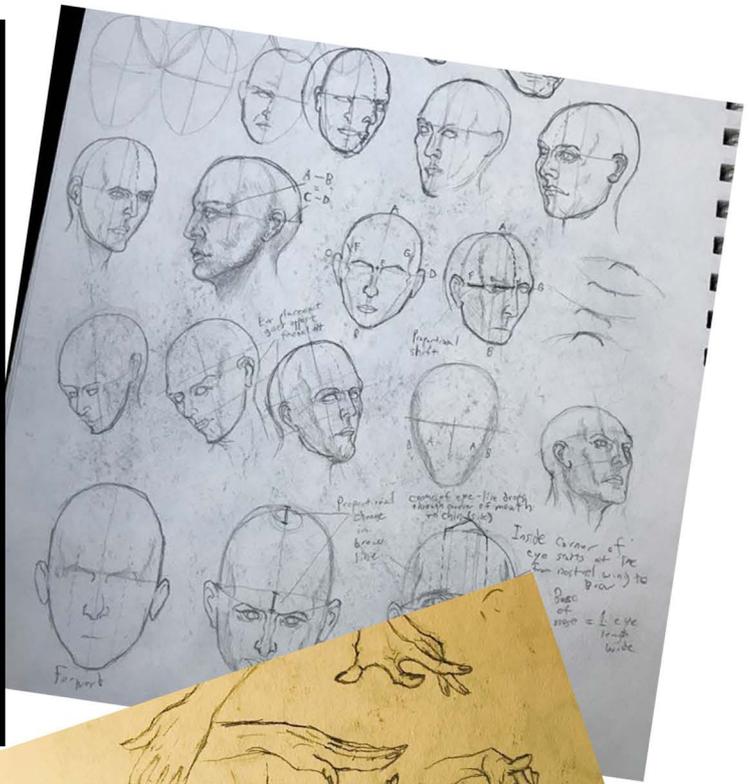

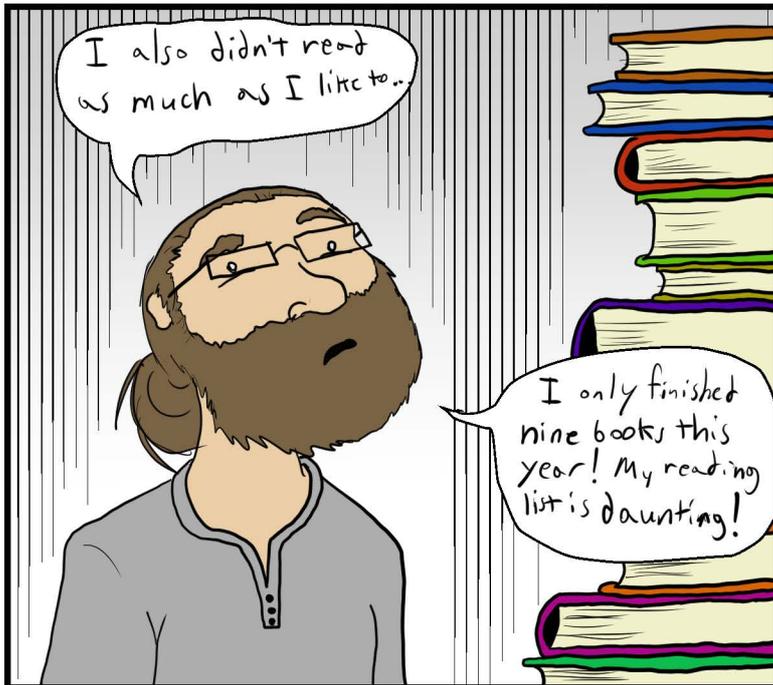

There, having run out from under some steps, was Scraggly Kitty.

Scraggly Kitty disappeared ~4 years ago! I had given her up for dead, but I guess she just found a new place to set up. It's rare for outside cats to live this long in a town, so she's probably found a new meal ticket.

I also didn't read as much as I like to..

I only finished nine books this year! My reading list is daunting!

I am still growing my hair out & then donating it to Wigs for Kids...

A few more months, I reckon, & then sweet, sweet scalp freedom.

I still don't really like where I live or where I work...

Still looking at exit strategies. Have a few irons in the fire for that...

I also recently started teaching myself to make games...

But it involves programming which I don't love.

I think that's about it for me, this year!
All in all, I'm doing well, better than many, thanks in large part just to fortuitous circumstance beyond my control, & I try to remember how much I have going for me that other people don't.

Here's me having a very serious hop, if you've forgotten what I look like. 🍻
